Virginia Cooperative Extension is a partnership of Virginia Tech, Virginia State University, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and local governments. Its programs and employment are open to all, regardless of age, color, disability, gender, gender identity, gender expression, national origin, political affiliation, race, religion, sexual orientation, genetic information, military status, or any other basis protected by law.

The Master Financial Educator Program trains individuals to become volunteer financial educators and coaches. Volunteers assist families in building or improving their financial capacity through a series of classes in personal money management.

Volunteers receive of 20 hours of classroom instruction and, in return, commit to contribute 40 hours of service within the 12 months following the training.

Volunteers partner with Cooperative Extension faculty to provide financial education in the community and assist with financial simulations for youth and adults (Reality Store, Kids Marketplace, and Poverty simulations).
